

Jonathon Glus

Jonathon Glus is the first CEO of Houston Arts Alliance (HAA), the city's nonprofit arts agency. On behalf of the City of Houston, HAA conducts a wide variety of activities including funding the arts; building arts organizations' capacity; cultivating business investment; managing an extensive art collection on behalf of the city, conducting research, and producing cultural tourism initiatives. Prior to Houston, Glus was director of cultural affairs for the city of Pasadena, CA. He was educated in urban economics and public policy at Indiana University and art history at University of Illinois.