

Tad leads ICMA's Center for Sustainable Communities overseeing research, outreach, and professional development projects focused on the intersection between sustainability and local government policies, programs, partnerships and performance measures. Prior to joining ICMA in 2003, Tad worked with Cornell University's Center for the Environment (1995-2003) and the University of Tennessee's Energy, Environment, and Resources Center (1993-1995).