Tips and basic information for your visit to Peru

Peru consists of three primary regions – the coast, where Lima, the Capital is; the Andes, notorious for Cusco, the Sacred Valley of the Incas and Machu Picchu; and the Amazon jungle, home to one of the planet's most bio diverse ecosystems. These regions, also have been one of the most important elements for the development of different cultures, some of them around 5000 years old, making Peru a rich country in history as well as in a huge variety of flora and fauna. Nowadays, Peru is becoming a very important destination for new business and investments, have also won an international name thanks to its history and the gastronomy.

Weather

The geographic region sets the climate.

The Coast, including Lima (no rains): Summer (Dec – Mar) // Winter (May - Oct)

The Andes, including Cusco and Machu Picchu: Rainy (Dec - Apr) // Dry (May - Oct)

The Jungle, including the Amazon: Heavy rains and flooding (Dec - Apr) // Light rains and dry (May - Oct)

Money ($/.)

Peruvian Currency is Nuevo Sol , 1 USD = $/. 3.20, always consider small denomination bills.

Credit cards and US dollars are also accepted in some places. You can exchange money at airports, hotels, and exchange houses.

Visas

Most countries in America and Europe do not require touristic visa to visit Peru. In order to have the detail list please enter this link: <http://www.rree.gob.pe>

Health

Vaccinations are not required, but Yellow fever vaccination is recommended for jungle visits.

Bottle water is always recommended.

Consider to bring enough medication for at least 3 extra days of your staying, as well as a list with allergies and health details in case of emergency.

Drink lots of water and electrolytes is recommended to avoid the altitude sickness, light meals the first day will also help with the acclimatization.
