

Governance and Leadership Summit: Thinking Through Change

Thursday 2 May 2019

Stirling Court Hotel, University of Stirling, Stirling, FK9 4LA

Programme

- 0930 Registration and Coffee
- 1000 Welcome and Introductions
Jim Metcalfe, Chief Executive, College Development Network
- 1010 Ministerial Address
Richard Lochhead MSP, Minister for Further Education, Higher Education and Science
- 1030 College Governance and Leadership in Scotland
Ken Milroy MBE, Chair, Good Governance Steering Group and Regional Chair, North East Scotland College
- 1040 College Finances and Performance
Mark MacPherson, Senior Manager, Lifelong Learning and Skills, Audit Scotland
- 1100 Coffee Break
- 1120 Workshop Session One

Delegates should attend their first workshop
- 1235 Lunch
- 1335 Workshop Session Two

Delegates should attend their final workshop of the day
- 1450 Keynote Speaker
Andrew Wilson, Managing Partner, Charlotte Street Partners
- 1520 Final Remarks
Jim Metcalfe, Chief Executive, College Development Network
- 1530 Close

@ColDevNet

www.facebook.com/collegedevelopmentnetwork

www.cdn.ac.uk

Workshops

Delegates will attend two out of four workshops available. Selections can be made during the booking process.

Workshop A	What is the purpose of colleges? Andrew Thomson, Director, Excellence First Enterprise Consultancy Focusing on colleges inventing success, generating socio-economic prosperity in partnership and encouraging innovation.
Workshop B	What does the future of learning look like? Karen Corbett, HM Inspector of Education, Education Scotland Moving forwardWhat will we mean by learning and teaching in the future? How will learning be organised and delivered and who will our learners be? How can we work towards a shared vision?
Workshop C	What is collective leadership and collaboration and why do we even need them? Dr Ken Thomson, Principal, Forth Valley College Ken will argue the case for colleges as catalysts for economic, skills and policy development in the Scottish environment. In the session they will showcase how a national and regional collaborative effort could see colleges being more than just catalysts but disruptors for change. He will debate how collective leadership through innovation and strong governance could and will lift the Government's agendas in areas such as skills development, widening attainment, employability, digital transformation, gender equality, inclusive growth and others to another level – a systems approach to change. He will show, with excellent examples of employer engagement, horizon mapping and a little sprinkling of city deals, what colleges could do today and tomorrow to lead change and will dip into a college vision for 2030 building a regional, national and global sector to be rightly proud of.
Workshop D	Are we taking equality seriously enough? Johanna Boyd and Martin Hayward, Equalities and Human Rights Commission Is equality an issue of concern only for women, ethnic minorities, gay or disabled people, or do their experiences affect us all

@ColDevNet

www.facebook.com/collegedevelopmentnetwork

www.cdn.ac.uk

	Are Human Rights only for people overseas, prisoners on roofs or criminals at risk of deportation? How could they impact on the work of a college? We proudly say “we are a’ Jock Tamsons bairns” – but are we, really? How can we be when some bairns live for 30 more years than others? Join Johanna and Martin to explore this.
--	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

@ColDevNet

www.facebook.com/collegedevelopmentnetwork

www.cdn.ac.uk