Suzanne D'Amours, National Coordinator, Weather Services to Media, Environment Canada

Have been involved in all aspects of weather over my entire career. Started working for Environment Canada as a weather observer, upper air observer and weather briefer over 32 years ago. Ten years later, became a weather forecaster. Took a six year hiatus from Environment Canada to be the on-air meteorologist for A-Channel Winnipeg. Since 2007, National coordinator of weather services to media, within Environment Canada's Meteorological Service of Canada. Currently working in the National Capital Region.
