Dear Roel,

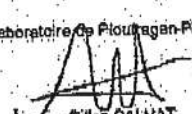

I have learnt with a great interest that there will be a French bid to organise the World Poultry Congress in 2020, in Paris.

Anses is a public agency in charge of expertise for policy makers in all field of sanitary safety. It depends on several state departments, including the department in charge of agriculture. Considering the poultry sector, Anses is working more particularly on welfare and animal health issues. The agency has specialised laboratories which also have a mission of reference laboratory for some major animal diseases under regulatory control, at the national as well as the European scale.

The organisation of the 2020 World Poultry Congress in Paris represents a great opportunity for all the stakeholders of the poultry sector in France. Consequently, Anses brings its full support to the french bid for WPC2020 prepared by the French branch of WPSA.

With my best regards,

The Director of Animal Health and Welfare
