

Mayor Dewey F. Bartlett Jr. is the 39th mayor of Tulsa. From an early age his parents, Dewey Sr. and Ann Bartlett, instilled in him the value of hard work and serving his community. He took the reins of city government during a time of financial crisis resulting from the national recession. He and his administration made tough decisions and the cost reductions began to pay off in fiscal year 2011. His commitment to public safety, economic development, sustainability, and quality of life issues demonstrates his heart and vision for Tulsa: to improve the quality of life for all Tulsans.

The mayor and his wife, Victoria, have passed along the Bartlett family values to their three children – Dewey F. Bartlett III, Ann A. Bennett, and Andrea Peterson Brown. Mayor Bartlett understands the value of legacies and is committed to building a better tomorrow for Tulsa.
