

Amy McDonald has seven years of experience in environmental consulting during which time, she has worked on projects involving environmental permitting and compliance, site investigation and remediation, decontamination and demolition, industrial wastewater treatment design and permitting, impoundment design, treatment system operation and maintenance, and hydrologic modeling. Key projects have involved programmatic approaches to complex sites, risk-based strategy development and planning, structural demolition engineering, database management, facility operation employees training, SPCC Plan preparation, National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permitting and litigation support.

