What happened on stage that had such a powerful impact on the way I saw him—and, more importantly, myself?

He was able to break down the human uniform we all wear and speak directly to the interior of me. So much so that I felt my heart aching and my soul resonating, yearning for more.

It was the definition of a spiritual experience... Bruce on stage, alone with his guitar, poetically revealing the essence of his life, my life, all life.

What happened with Bruce on Broadway was artistic expression at its best. I felt as if this journey we're all on—of questioning and discovering—just got expanded. I felt deepened, widened, by the singing of it.
